Ever dream of living off the grid? This property is far enough from electricity lines that you can be off the grid and never have to ever deal with large power companies. The bungalow is already set up with some solar, and can be used as a hunting cabin, meditation space or just a place of peace. Surrounded by pine trees that make lovely sounds in the breeze, you have a private road shared with only one neighbor leading to your 6.9 acres of property. Above the cabin is a flat area suitable for building the house of your dreams with east, north and south views across the valley. There are no nearby neighbors (just one that you™ share the road with), except the 100 acres of forever-free land managed by the Rondout Esopus Land Conservancy bordering your property to the south. Many improvements have been made to the cabin structure, including freshly repainted exterior and interior, a new, larger porch, a new separate room in the back of the cabin, and a new roof in 2018. The structure has a small gas stove and dry sink waiting for your final touches to make it a guest space to accompany your new construction or just simply your own fantasy ~cabin porn™ future filled with peace and serenity.
